

ABSTRACT

An occlusion device for occluding an abnormal opening includes a body configured to receive expansion medium so as to expand to a deployed position, in which the periphery of the body sealingly presses against the wall of the abnormal opening.